Speech Communication Lecture at Salve Regina

"The Age of Enlightenment in the Discipline of Rhetoric and Public Address" will be the subject of a talk by Robert J. Kulo, Professor of Speech Communication at Salve Regina College on Tuesday, October 14th. His lecture, which is part of the College's "Aims of Education" lecture series, is open to the public free of charge and will be held at 7:30 p.m. in O'Hare Academic Center.

Professor Kulo will focus his discussion on scholarship, excellence and learning, and the proposition that effective teaching combines both learning and scholarship.

A member of the Salve Regina faculty for four years, Mr. Kulo is the founder of and faculty advisor to the Readers Theatre group at the College in addition to serving as Forensics Director. He holds a Masters degree in Speech Communication from California State University at San Diego and a Bachelors degree from San Diego State College.

*I talked with Bob McH who will try to stop this before it goes in mail. He thinks it might be too late.
